ABSTRACT

This 484-item bibliography is a revised and expanded version of William W. Gage's "Contrastive Studies in Linguistics: A Bibliographical Checklist" (CAL, 1961). Following a general section, the entries are arranged alphabetically by foreign language. The language headings are: Afrikaans, Arabic, Armenian, Azerbaijani, Bantu, Batak, Bengali, Bulgarian, Burmese, Catalan, Cebuano/Visayan, Chamorro, Chinese, Chuvash, Creole, Czech, Danish, Dutch, Ewe (Gaand), Fante, Finnish, French, Frisian, Garo, German, Greek, Gujarati, Hawaiian, Hebrew, Hiligaynon, Hindi, Hungarian, Icelandic, Ilocano, India (general), Indonesian (Bahasa), Irish, Italian, Japanese, Javanese, Kannada, Kazakh, Korean, Latin, Latvian, Lithuanian, Macedonian, Malay, Marathi, Norwegian, Oriya, Pampango, Pangasinan, Persian, Polish, Portuguese, Rumanian, Russian, Serbo-Croatian, Sinhalese, Slavic (general), Slovak, Slovene, Sotho, Spanish, Sugbuhanon, Sundanese, Swahili, Swedish, Tagalog, Tamil, Telegu, Thai, Trukese, Turkish, Twi, Udmurt, Ukrainian, Urdu, Uzbek, Vietnamese, Yiddish, Yoruba, and Zulu. Each entry is given in full only once, under the foreign language that stands first in the title or is cited first in the test, with cross-reference to it under the other language or languages involved in the contrast. Eight titles that came to the attention of the editors while the book was in press appear as addenda. All Cyrillic entries are given in transliteration. An alphabetical author index concludes the bibliography. (Author/RM)

INTRODUCTION

The present bibliography is a revised and expanded version of William W. Gage's Contrastive studies in linguistics: A bibliographical checklist (Washington, D.C.: Center for Applied Linguistics, 1961), a by-product of a project of contrastive structure studies carried out by the Center for Applied Linguistics under a contract with the United States Office of Education, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

For present purposes, a contrastive structure study is defined as a systematic comparison of selected linguistic features of two or more languages, the intent of which is not to demonstrate or establish genetic or typological relationships, but, typically, to provide teachers and textbook writers with a body of information which can be of service in the preparation of instructional materials, the planning of courses, and the development of classroom techniques. This definition excludes certain linguistically oriented materials in which the contrastive element is of secondary importance, e.g. textbooks, reference grammars, etc. It also excludes, though this is more questionable, contrastive studies of two or more dialects of a single language.

Following a general section, the entries are arranged alphabetically by foreign language, Afrikaans–Zulu. (The editors have not set up a heading for English; such a heading would have brought under it more than half the entries in the bibliography.) Each entry is given in full only once, under the foreign language that stands first in the title or is cited first in the text, with cross-reference to it under the other language or languages involved in the contrast. Following the languages section, there is an alphabetical author index. Titles which came to the attention of the editors while the book was in press appear as addenda on page 37. The addenda are cross-referenced in the main text and have been included in the author index. All Cyrillic entries are given in transliteration. There has been no attempt to standardize minor variations in the various transliteration systems employed.

In the preparation of this volume the editors enjoyed the generous support of colleagues on the staff of the Center for Applied Linguistics. Particular thanks are due to Dr. Charles A. Ferguson, Director of the Center, Dr. William W. Gage, research linguist and Acting Director of the Languages Program, Miss Sirarpi Ohannessian and her staff in the English Program, and William A. Stewart, research linguist. The editors are especially grateful to Miss Amy E. Shaughnessy of the Publications Section for her patient assistance in the preparation of the final manuscript.
